SEVEN PITTSBURG FIREMEN DROWNED IN OIL

COURT PREPARING TO TRY LANCASTER

Former Members Co. M to Face Jury at Hamilton

STAR WITNESS FOR STATE DEAD

Effort Will Be Made to Use Testimony of Leslie West

(Associated Press)

HAMILTON, Ala., Jan. 21—This little town in the Alabama hills was today caring for an influx of people which trebled its population. These folks are here in connection with the trial of eight former members of the Alabama National guard, charged with lynching William Baird, a miner, near Jasper in 1921, following the greatest coal strike the state has ever known.

One of the defendants, Robert J. Lancaster, has been twice tried, mistrials resulting. Some of the main witnesses on each side are missing, but the state and defense declared they are ready for another hearing on the action case which is said to have no parallel in the criminal annals of the state.

Baird was removed from the Jasper jail by a small mob, hustled into a waiting automobile and taken two miles from town, where he was shot to death without even a chance to talk or pray. Baird was in prison on a charge of killing Private Morris, a member of Company M, Alabama National guard. Morris had previously shot and killed the Rev. Northcutt, father-in-law of Baird.

The killings and lynchings were outcroppings of the mine war, according to testimony at the last trial. The state charged members of Company M. lynched Baird in revenge for the slaying of their comrade, Morris.

Lancaster was alleged to have been the principal. The other defendants in the action are: Joseph W. Key, Manly R. Sexton, E. W. Speed, Jr., William E. Handy, Glenn Stephens, Roy Patton and C. E. Richardson.

The state's star witness at previous trials, Leslie West, a taxi cab driver was killed since the last hearing of the case. This witness testified he drove one of the cars which carried the lynching party and that the mob was composed of members of Company M.

The state has announced that an effort will be made to use his testimony previously given, at this trial. It was also by counsel for the state that the evidence was in hand.

A jury was secured without difficulty and the preliminaries were dispatched with speed. The state announced it had called 31 witnesses while the defense had 76 on its list.

The court room, as at former trials, was crowded. Members of the state law enforcement department were observed moving about the courtroom.

The defendants will be tried separately. Lancaster's case was the first called, Judge C. P. Almon of Florence is presiding and the state's case is in the hands of Horace C. Wilkerson, special assistant attorney general.

STATE HIGHWAY COMMISSION DESIRES TO CO-OPERATE WITH COUNTY ON THE ROAD QUESTION

The Daily, Saturday afternoon, received the following letter from John A. Rogers, chairman of the state highway commission, in regard to the proposed plan of the state to have the counties maintain certain roads:

Hon. W. R. Shelton,
Editor,
Albany-Decatur Daily,
Decatur, Ala.

Dear Mr. Shelton:—
In the Albany-Decatur Daily of January 15th appears an account giving the attitude of the County Commissioners of Morgan County toward the plans of the Highway Commission of Alabama for carrying on the work of that Department.

I agree with the county commissioners that their first duty is to the people of their county. The County Commissioners of Morgan County occupy the same position toward their county and toward the people of their county that the state highway commission does toward the people of Alabama. The state highway commission feel that they are partners with and not competitors of the county commissioners in their joint efforts to build roads in Alabama. That the county commissioners feel pride in trying to carry out their prejection promises is most commendable. The state highway commissioners would not have the county commissioners neglect their county roads that the state commissioners might make a fine showing in the building of state roads.

Most of the counties of Alabama have endorsed the proposed plans of the state highway commission. In no instance has a county declined to do so when members of the board of county commissioners came in person and discussed the situation with the state highway commissioners. It has been found upon discussion of the proposed plans of the highway department that endorsement of these plans by the county commissioners not only does not hinder the county commissioners from taking care of the county system of roads but that the plans of the state highway commission enables them to do so at much less expense and far more effectively.

As the program for road building by the highway department of Alabama for 1924-1925 will be made up within the next ten days, I hope that you as the leader of public opinion in your section, accompanied by the probate judge and members of the court of county commissioners will make the highway department a visit for the purpose of discussing this program. In no instance has the state asked a county to maintain a road already built by the state asked a county to maintain a road already built by the state. This will never be done as it is not a part of the contemplated plans of the highway department. May I ask that you give this letter publicity. I feel sure that when it is generally known that the state highway commissioners want to cooperate with the several counties in road building, that these commissioners do not take the position that they are bosses, but that they are the servants of the people, that a kinder feeling will be engendered for the highway department throughout the state. The Highway commissioners of Alabama know that they are spending not their own money, but the money of the people and we feel that the people should have a voice in saying how this money is spent.

Very Sincerely Your Friend,
John A. Rogers

Chairman state highway commission.

TUSCALOOSA MAKES PROGRESS RAPIDLY

Upon his return from Tuscaloosa, J. W. Clifton, formerly president of the Albany-Decatur chamber of commerce stated that the chamber of commerce of that city has an annual budget of $18,000, with a paid secretary who has two men working with him. Mr. Clifton said that in addition to the senior chamber of commerce at Tuscaloosa there is also a junior chamber, with four civic organizations in addition, that work in cooperation with the chambers of commerce.

A 11 story office building is now in course of erection at Tuscaloosa, some 300 residences are now being built there and many other improvements made. Mr. Clifton said he was delighted and surprised that a city like Tuscaloosa having only about 13 thousand inhabitants could accomplish such big things. J. B. Brossius is the secretary of the chamber at Tuscaloosa. He stated to Mr. Clifton that it is the custom in Tuscaloosa to have free sites for manufacturing plants donated by their owners, and that the chamber of commerce, as the instrument of other citizens, generally raised what money was needed to induce prospective manufacturers to locate in Tuscaloosa. Mr. Clifton was the lunch guest of T. L. Beauchamp, manager of the Alabama Power company's plant at Tuscaloosa, while there.

EVINS TAKES ISSUE WITH DAVIS OPINION

Democratic Chairman Says Primary Will Be Held in March

THE PARTY MAY DEFRAY EXPENSE

Believes the Attorney General in Error
on Construction

(Associated Press)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Jan. 21—That the ruling of Attorney General H. G. Davis, holding the Alabama presidential primary invalid, will not effect the holding of the democratic primary for naming delegates to the national convention, is the opinion of R. B. Evins, chairman of the state democratic executive committee, who arrived here yesterday.

Mr. Evins says he has high regard for the ruling of the Attorney General, but believes his ruling on the presidential primary law, the Verner Act, is in error, both as to validity of the act and is holding that the counties are not chargeable with the expense of the election.

The democratic committee, if necessary, will defray the election expenses, he says. The act, which Mr. Davis declared unconstitutional, provides for a presidential primary on the second Tuesday in March.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Jan. 21—Governor Brandon has no intention of calling on the supreme court of Alabama for an opinion on the presidential primary act, which has been declared unconstitutional by Attorney General Harwell G. Davis, he stated today.

The chief executive said it is a political matter and not an economic question which has arisen and that, therefore, he does not think it wise to ask the court for an opinion.

Under an act of the 1923 legislature the governor has the authority to ask the supreme court for advisory opinions on all important constitutional questions.

SPLENDID REPORTS BY THE T. V. BANK

Thirty-second Meeting Held Here by the Stockholders

OFFICERS NAMED FOR 1924 TERM

Rapid Growth Shown in Deposits During the Passing Year

The directors meeting of the Tennessee Valley Bank held late Saturday afternoon, was the 32nd annual gathering of that body, the bank having been established in 1892 by the late S. S. Broadus.

The stockholders had elected at their Saturday morning meeting the directors who late Saturday named the following bank officers: Clyde Hendrix, president; W. W. Fussell, active vice president; J. C. White, cashier; S. A. Lynne, chairman of the board; and Geo. D. Williamson, secretary.

The inactive vice presidents elected were: P. B. Timberlake, of Stevenson; R. A. Duncan of Florence; and J. B. Lagomarsino of Sheffield.

The following were elected members of the bank's advisory board which holds monthly meetings at Decatur: J. E. Orman, J. B. Lagomarsino, J. F. Proctor of Scottsboro, G. D. Williamson, F. H. Pointer, S. A. Lynne, Clyde Hendrix, W. W. Fussell and J. C. White. The board declared a regular dividend of 5 per cent and a special dividend of 3 per cent with recommendation that in July a similar dividend be declared.

With the payment of the present dividend this bank has paid a total of 392 per cent to its stockholders in the last 32 years.

It was reported in the director's meeting that total deposits amounted to more than $5,000,000, an increase over last year of $1,000,000 and an increase of $2,000,000 in the last five years.

The net earnings for the past year were reported at nearly $75,000 or 43 per cent on the bank's capital of $175,000. The "Secondary Reserve" of this bank amounts to more than $2,000,000, or about 50 per cent of total deposits.

A unique feature of the report is that for the first time in the history of the bank a single office reflected a deposit of over a million dollars, where as, 10 years ago sixteen of the branch banks of the system showed but one million dollars on deposit. More than 60 people are employed by this bank and about 16,000 people use it as a depository. The report shows the capital is $175,000, a surplus fund of $175,000, with undivided profits and reserves of more than $440,000.

In 1904, the head office of the bank was removed from Florence to Decatur so as to gain a more central location in the Tennessee Valley. The branch banks of the institution are at Stevenson, Scottsboro, Paint Rock, Gurley, Falkville, Hillsboro, Courtland, Turney Creek, Sheffield, Florence, Tusculumbia, Cherokee, Russellville, Haleyville and Decatur.

The following institutions are affiliated with the Tennessee Valley bank: The Bank of Belle Mina, the Tennessee Valley Company of which J. R. Daniell is the manager, and the North Alabama Building and Loan Association of which A. T. Hanson is the manager.

JACK A. ROBINSON DIES OF PNEUMONIA

Funeral services were announced to be held Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock for Jack A. Robinson, who died at his residence a few miles west of the Twin Cities Sunday night at 10 o'clock. The services will be held at the residence of S. T. Long in West Albany with the Rev. J. I. Stockton in charge.

Mr. Robinson had been ill for only a short time, pneumonia being given as the cause of his death. The deceased was a prominent man of the county for many years, and at the time of his death was a member of the Morgan County board of revenue, serving his second term.

The following ministers of the Moulton Heights neighborhood, where Mr. Robinson lived, will have charge of the funeral: Rev. Parker and Rev. J. I. Stockton.

Mr. Robinson is survived by his wife S. T. Long, at whose residence the funeral services are to be held was a brother-in-law of the deceased.

News of the death of Mr. Robinson came as a surprise, as only last week he was in the Twin Cities attending to business as usual. He attended one session of the monthly meeting of the county board of revenue last Monday, but did not return to his place on the board on Tuesday on account of illness. Mr. Robinson's illness was not considered serious, until Saturday when it became known among his many friends here, that he had grown much worse.

Firemen Suffer With
Mercury 2 Degrees
Below Zero

(Associated Press)

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 21—Seven men three captains and four hoemen, of the Philadelphia fire department, were drowned in oil, while fighting a fire at the Butler street plant of the Atlantic Refining company today.

The bodies were recovered after the fire had been brought under control, with the loss in money unestimated.

The dead are: Captain Edward Jones, Captain Rudolph Bitt, Captain John Frazier, Hoemen Patrick Abbott, Robert Smith, John Mathman, and Samuel Bollinger.

A number of firemen also were injured.

The fire broke out in a tank containing 10,000 gallons of oil shortly after five o'clock. The captain and three men were on a ladder which extended above a tank adjoining the burning oil. The oil in this tank was being drawn off when the ladder broke and the men fell into the tank.

A chemical analysis of the oil, recently released by the tank, showed that the oil and fumes arising from it were believed to have overcome the struggling firemen. They sank at once and the bodies later were recovered through the manhole at the bottom of the tank.

Other firemen suffered severely because the mercury was two degrees below zero as they fought the flames. The cause of the fire has not been determined.

Fire lines were thrown out for four or five city blocks on each side of the refinery, which adjoins a residence section and has been the scene of a number of costly blazes.

Many families deserted their homes and additional fire apparatus was summoned as the morning wore on.

HINDS SAYS COLD KILLED THE WEEVIL

(Associated Press)

AUBURN, Ala., Jan. 21—Heavy boll weevil casualties accompanied the recent cold weather in Alabama, in the opinion of Dr. W. E. Hinds, entomologist for the Alabama experiment station and extension service, as expressed in official communication to the county agents of the state.

The report of the Dr. Hinds was delayed until investigations could be made. Speaking of results, he said that in the northern part of the state where cotton leaf worms stripped the foliage rather completely last fall, the number of weevils entering hibernation was greatly reduced.

"The recent cold wave undoubtedly destroyed a large part of the weevils under most shelter conditions where the temperature went below zero. It is expected that most of the weevils which were hibernating in hulls on standing stalks were destroyed where the temperature went to six degrees above zero or lower. The normal percentage of survival, up to this time, may be expected where the temperature did not go below 12 degrees above zero."

Dr. Hinds' pointing out that zero weather was recorded in northern Alabama and that the official thermometer at Auburn registered 5 degrees above, concludes that the boll weevil problem will not be extremely serious in north Alabama this year. In the southern section, however, above a normal infestation is expected, he states, unless future weather conditions are such as to reduce the number now hibernating.

Brandon is to appoint Mr. Edwards' successor.

Adele Garrison's New Phase of Revelations of a Wife

The Guilty Sense of Relief Madge Detected.

USUALLY I find that on most occasions I agree with Lillian heartily, but at her cynical prophecy concerning my sister-in-law, I found myself hotly resentful. I had experienced the same feeling before, when I first had realized her innate dislike of Harriet Braithwaite, but I found it intensified now because I felt that my friend usually so tolerant, was doing the office woman an injustice. With almost any one save Lillian my resentment would have found a flaming oral outlet, but our friendship has been of too long standing and I too, possess to me to be jeopardized by a difference of opinion over another woman's sincerity.

I contented myself, therefore, with a perfunctory "I think you're mistaken," and then, in a colorless tone as I could manage, but which brought a shrewd comprehending glance from Lillian.

"Maybe so, maybe so," she droned, provokingly, then added with a swift change of tone, "but you and I aren't going to quarrel over her, although you are about ready to impale me on a toothpick. Forget it, old dear. I'll promise to leave Mary's little hands so lashed to the post for me, so that he won't be able to follow her to school for a week, and I'm going to aid and abet that sage old dame, your mother-in-law in every sense of the word—except, of course, planning to stage for her daughter's benefit. Incidentally, if there's a wisser old bird anywhere than your husband's mother, I'd like to make her acquaintance."

Getting Ready. "She's all of that," I returned with a strained effort to follow Lillian's camouflaging the ditch of difference between us, and for the rest of our busy forenoon there was no further reference to Harriet from either of us.

Long before the train was due, everything was in readiness, and through the closed kitchen door floated tantalizing promises of one of Katie's best culinary performances. My mother-in-law had elected to receive the travelers in her own

THE HOME KITCHEN

Some Made Dishes That One Prepares to Replace Meats

By JEANNETTE YOUNG NORTON
The Authority on Home Cooking.

WE get so tired now and then of steak, chops and roasts that it is a good idea to turn to made dishes for awhile, then we can turn to meats again with new zest. Made dishes are not all composed of left-overs as is generally supposed. They may be prepared from fresh ingredients, though many left-overs are utilized in this way. Careful preparation and good seasoning mean a great deal in this form of cooking.

Tasty Chicken Loaf.

On the day after a roast-chicken dinner, instead of serving the left-over chicken cold, I prepared it as a chicken loaf. Strip all the meat from the rack and chop it coarsely. There should be two large cupsful when it is chopped. Put a tablespoonful of butter in a small pan. When it is melted, stir in a heaping tablespoonful of flour. Work the mixture to a smooth paste, then add gradually, a pint of milk, stirring it gently until it reaches the boiling point. Cook this sauce for one minute. Add a cupful of dry crumbs and cook it a minute more. Remove it from the fire and add pepper and salt, the juice of one lemon, a teaspoonful of chopped celery leaves, three beaten egg yolks and the chicken. When these ingredients are well mixed, add the stiffly-beaten whites and the eggs, folding them in evenly. Turn the mixture into a buttered baking-dish and bake it for a half hour in a medium oven.

Sausage Savories.

Remove the meat from six link sausages. Add pepper, salt, the juice of an onion, a half teaspoonful of sugar, a teaspoonful of chopped celery leaves, a quarter of a teaspoonful of curry powder, a small cupful of dry crumbs, a beaten egg and enough cream to soften the mass. Fill buttered ramekins lightly with the mixture, bake it about twenty minutes in a medium oven. Serve baked potatoes and applesauce with the savories.

Escalloped Salmon.

After draining a large can of salmon and removing skin and bones, flake it evenly. Wipe the inside of a baking-dish with a cut bud of garlic, then grease it well and sprinkle it with fine, dry crumbs. Put in a layer of fish, then a layer of crumbs. Dot the top with butter, dust it with pepper and salt, and sprinkle it with very-finely-minced or grated onion. Repeat the layers in this manner until all the fish is used. Make the top layer of crumbs. Add a small cupful of cream and bake the mixture for about a half hour, depending upon the oven. Serve a small cupful of baked potatoes and hot rolls. This is a quick and economical dish.

Braised Calf's Liver.

Select a piece of calf's liver weighing a pound and a quarter, and making a pocket, stuff it with a savory stuffing. Grease over the liver with a little melted butter, cover the rounding top with thinly-sliced bacon, place it in a roasting-pan and sprinkle it with a mixture consisting of the juice of a large lemon, salt, pepper, a teaspoonful of sugar, a teaspoonful of melted butter and a teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce. Bake the liver with this mixture frequently.

Add water to the pan, cover it and cook the liver in the oven for one hour, or longer if it does not seem thoroughly tender. Strain off the dish gravy, add any of the basting mixture that is left, then thicken it with a little browned flour and turn it over the liver as serving.

A TRICKY fellow—he! Love, most precious of all treasures, Love, to whom all bards have sung, Love, the ruler of the universe, captures every heart. And just when a lad or lassie is wandering blindly on and wondering why he or she has been forgotten, Love creeps up by stealth and takes his victim by surprise! There are some, too, who laugh at Love and scoff at his power. Never, they say, will Love be their master. Fools—they! Love's power is magic. Their hearts will be taken unaware, and they'll be his most devoted slaves!

WINIFRED BLACK TELLS ABOUT Two Kinds of Wives

Copyright, 1924, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Winifred Black

ONE of the boys was in love with the wrong girl, and his folks were fairly worried to death about him.

No, there was nothing really wrong about the girl, only she didn't belong in their set and her people were foreigners and they went to a different church and she had the queerest ideas about housekeeping and her clothes were queer too.

She was all right in her own simple little things that she wore at home, but when she tried to "dress up" and look like the other girls her sweetheart's family knew she really wasn't the thing at all—not at all.

She didn't know the right people or go to the right places and Jim's folks just fairly died.

Of course, they were having a fine time with Tom.

Tom was engaged to a perfect darling—pretty as a picture, sweet as a peach—and dress—well, she looked like a dress model, that's all.

And she could swim and ride, drive a car, play a good game of tennis and to see her dance you'd think she was a professional.

Her people were perfectly lovely. They had a fine house in the right part of town, her father belonged to the right clubs, one of her brothers was at Harvard, one was in a law office, and she had a sister married to a tip-top swell. Her sister lived in Honolulu, and was always sending home pictures of the volcano and the Hula Girls and things.

When the sister gave a party it was always in the Honolulu paper—with full details. Oh, you could see she was right in the swim.

So Tom's folks did the best they could with Jim, but they really took their comfort with Tom.

The Two Homes

Tom and Jim both married. Nobody said much about Jim's wedding—but Tom's bride had her picture in the paper and four bridesmaids and the smartest kind of wedding. Tom and his bride went on a wedding trip to Honolulu and when they came back they had almost enough presents to furnish their smart little apartment, and everything was perfectly lovely.

Jim and his wife went into the suburbs to live. They bought their own house, if you please, and put out a garden and Jim's wife worked in the garden. The very first year she was married she had a baby—well, the baby really was a darling. Black

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By ANNIE LAURIE

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: I am a girl seventeen years of age and very deeply in love with a young man two years my senior. Your advice is to have many young men friends, but I do not enjoy myself unless I am with this particular friend.

Do you think I am foolish to wait a few years before I get married? He has asked me to wait until he is twenty-one. What is your advice? BEAZIE.

BEAZIE: Continue the friendship, of course. But do not become engaged to this young man yet, my dear. And if you do not permit him to occupy all your thoughts you will find interest in others.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: I'm twenty-nine years old and have been going with a man five years, but he has never proposed. He has never proposed, but does not want me to go with any one else and gets terribly jealous if I do. There is another man two years younger than I who has asked for eyes, like Jim's wife's eyes, and red hair like Jim. You couldn't look at it without wanting to squeeze it. In another year there was another baby and Jim's wife didn't mind at all. She acted as if she thought it was all right, and Jim acted the same way, and Tom's wife didn't have much to do with Jim's wife and Tom and Jim didn't see much of each other—but what do you think?

The other day I met the old folks and they told me that Tom and his wife were divorced and that Tom was in debt up to his ears. His wife was extravagant, vain, frivolous and a lot of things that are best not told.

Tom Looks Wistful

Jim—oh, he has three children now and they've bought the lots on both sides of their house. When Jim's father was taken sick and it grew hard for Jim's mother to take care of him Jim's wife sent for the old folks and put them in a big comfortable room she and Jim had built up purpose for them. She cooks the best things you ever heard of for Jim's father to eat. She and Jim's mother are as thick as thieves, and Tom comes out to spend Sundays with them and they never say a word to him about a thing that might be unpleasant—but he looks a little wistful when Jim's children come in to say good-night.

"This thing has taught me one thing," said Jim's mother to me, the other day. "I'm never going to try to play providence again. I helped to make Tom's match for him and I did everything I could to break up Jim's engagement. I'm awfully glad I couldn't do it."

Good Rules to Follow for Foot Comfort

By LUCRECIA BORI

The Famous Spanish Prima Donna

HOW many women give every beauty attention to face and hands and neck and arms altogether neglect to care for the feet as they should be cared for!

This is a grievous fault, and one whose consequences are very likely to be felt in time, for foot neglect is too often the direct cause of foot trouble.

In other words, if you give your feet a fair chance by proper care and proper shoes and stockings they are very likely to repay you in gratitude by keeping in perfect condition.

And, my dears, this proper care of the feet is really very necessary if your face is to reflect the loveliness of expression and the perfect calm and poise that must underlie beauty. You know that no face which is pinched with pain and irritation can be attractive, or even pretty, no matter how well-mannered the features may happen to be.

Now, I'm going to tell you that the greatest fault in the proper beauty care of your feet is the lack of ventilation. If you will really pay attention to this and follow the directions I am going to give you to remedy this condition, you are sure to be repaid for your care.

Have you ever stopped to realize that your feet normally have little no chance to expose their pores to the air and light? They are encased in shoes all day and at night you remove shoes and stockings to change quickly into others or to get into bed, where your feet are again shielded from air by the covers which go over them.

Now, the pores of your feet are very active—therefore, strict cleanliness is absolutely necessary if your pores are to remain capable of free breathing. And you must give your feet a chance to breathe.

In these days of many bath-rooms, most of us bathe every day. But if you do not indulge in a daily bath, you must at least allow your feet to be bathed every day. It is most of the time makes this necessary.

You will find it very easy to rinse out a pair of stockings every night. For you really should wear a fresh pair of stockings every day. It is infinitely better for your feet, and it is also easier on your stockings. They wear longer. In this way you can keep two or three pairs of stockings going, and alternate so that the stockings you have worn the day before may have a rest.

Dry your feet thoroughly, taking care to leave no moisture between the toes. Among the ingredients which are helpful in the care of your feet are:

Alcohol
Olive oil

You don't use them together of course, but if you have both on hand, you can apply one or the other according to your needs.

A light rub of alcohol on the soles

YOUR HEALTH

How Diseases Are Caused Should Be Well Understood

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

TODAY I talked with a silver-haired member of Congress. In literature and politics he is well-versed. He is a great orator and a leader of thought.

"I have a dreadful coryza," he said. "I have such a cold that my nose runs a quart a day."

On asking what he had done for the attack he said he had taken each day about forty grains of a powerful coal-tar product, capable of placing great pressure on the heart. The good man did not realize that such treatment is extremely dangerous.

I have often said that we teach everything in the schools and colleges except how to live. If a man should know the rules of health, it is such a one as I have described.

Every child should be taught the important lessons of hygiene and physiology and the simple measures for health preservation. A little conversation in the home on such matters will be helpful, not only to this generation, but to the next as well.

Yesterday I visited the great medical library of the Surgeon General's office. In one section are hundreds of books on domestic medicine, most of them written one or two generations ago. These books were not written in such language as to be intelligible to the average layman—they were written for medical students. It is no wonder their lessons never sank into the popular mind. That they did not is the reason why there is not more common knowledge of health matters today. Our fathers and mothers did not learn of these things and so we were not taught.

I should like to see every child given such instruction that he will shun dangerous and habit-forming drugs and that he will learn enough of the causes of disease to know how to escape illness.

When I suggested to the member of Congress that such attacks of sneezing and coryza as he described might come from intestinal poisoning, he seemed astonished. Yet it is a fact that the intestinal lining is quite capable of drawing up and throwing into the blood stream poisonous materials which may cause all sorts of disagreeable ailments.

The home is sanitary and healthful when it overrules a sanitary and pure basement. No human system can be perfect in all its parts and functions unless it is built around a normal and never-failing intestinal tract.

Whenever you have a cold in the head, a sore throat, a watery nose, a headache, bear in mind that such conditions are sometimes the result of intestinal absorption. Keep the basement in order and the whole house is likely to be in apple pie condition.

Answers to Health Questions

D. M. D. Q.—I suffer from pains in the back of my head, also inside my head and my left eye. What treatment would you recommend?

A.—You should consult an eye specialist for an examination. It would also be advisable to have your urine examined and your blood pressure taken. In this way the cause of your trouble may be determined and proper treatment prescribed.

S. F. D. Q.—I am a boy, twelve years of age, and occasionally feel in my stomach a very bad pain, and how can it be cured?

A.—Sleep-walking may occur in a healthy person, but the pronounced varieties are observed in hysteria. You should consult a doctor for an examination and treatment.

J. C. F. Q.—Please tell me if kerosene is harmful to the hair.

A.—No, kerosene is not harmful. In some cases it is beneficial.

WHILE the coat-frock has appeared for some time, each version of the model can be made smart and new by the addition of some individual trimming touch.

This navy twill coat-frock would please the most fastidious. Narrow black and henna silk braid makes interesting little cross-crosses at cuffs and hem while gray squirrel completes the effect.

Down the side are four plaits, stitched all the way down. Each one is longer than the other, so that they drop in a little bit below the hem.

Bishop McDowell Preaches at St. John's

Alabama Episcopalians in Birmingham this week.

Theme of Discourse

The theme of the Bishop's discourse may be said to have been "With Christ in the School Life."

In Christ's school, all were said to be "first graders," and that the great teacher alone could make promotions.

Furthermore it was made clear that all remained in the first grade until the scenes of this world pass.

The idea of the existence of "100 per cent Christians," those who knew "key verses," and so could tell all about the Bible, and who said what was the use of attending church as they knew all about divine teaching any way, was not an acceptable one, to the speaker. It was shown true learners must love the Great Teacher, know His voice and the very intonations of His voice. He said Christ's true disciples heard Him without embarrassment. It was declared that "the seething turmoil of suspicion and fear" among people, and the hatreds of race would give place to fellowship "and trust, if the people of the world would only become learners in Christ's school of life."

Near the beginning of his sermon the Bishop said children asked wise and deep questions, such as "Who is God?" "Why did He create the world?" "Why did He put me in the world?" "What does He expect me to do?"

The answer to these questions was said to be found in the fact that, "God is Love." From that well known definition, the speaker showed that "Love is giving ones self freely, gladly and whole heartedly to another."

The speaker said as there is no love without some one to love, God created us.

"Love is a circle; it has to be received and returned."

"It was shown that God would be very greatly disappointed if we do not give answer to His heart's desire."

The speaker said that while the material universe was "good" in God's sight, that still the "sweet incense of the flowers and the forests vocal with the songs of birds" did not satisfy the deepest longings of the Creator.

"God loves naturally. But we have to learn to love." The speaker then showed how "the world is the best school we have in which to learn."

History.

It is only in the last hundred years that history has gone sufficiently into details to make it deeply interesting.

TODAY'S BIG NEWS

Now

That favorite pocket tin of fresh Tuxedo tobacco which has cost you fifteen cents or more for the last five years, is yours for just twelve (12) cents from now on!

Just two things have made it possible for us to give you this 20% reduction on Tuxedo:

1. A reduction in the cost of Kentucky Burley tobacco and in package materials, as well.
2. The consolidation of three of our big plants into one. (Mr. Ford may not be in the tobacco business but he is right about consolidation.)

This gives us a chance to pass an advantage along to all our friends; to share a good thing.

We haven't lost any time in taking advantage of this opportunity.

You know that it is the desire and policy of The American Tobacco Co. to extend to its customers the maximum of service.

Reducing the price of a great favorite like Tuxedo—the moment it's possible—is our idea of delivering this service.

So now you're getting the familiar tin of Tuxedo tobacco at 12 cents instead of 15 cents.

Tuxedo is always FRESH. Every package is—
